Its jogs are high quality, but can't be "spun" (they stop as soon as you take your hand off them).

Can you help Nhan to decide? Please feel free to add your advice for him in the comments below.. You can plug two external sources in with rudimentary volume mixing but no EQs It doesn't have a separate booth out.. • Are you finding it hard to decide between two controllers? Tell us what type of DJ you are and what's influencing your decision.. If you already have Traktor Pro 2, the Denon might be a better bet for you as you are paying for the software again when you buy the Kontrol S2.

It is designed to use Traktor Pro 2 in a certain way – with two decks plus limited use of the sample decks.. The Kontrol S2 seems better designed, but the 3000 offers more Which do you think is better? Digital DJ Tips says: They're both good controllers, and your choice is going to depend upon size, feel and features.. Denon DJ has been relatively quiet as a brand since its takeover After happily using an MC3000 for a few.. When you're deciding, weight up where you want to use it, how much space you'll have to set up, how you want to DJ (how important are sample decks? Will you ever want to use external sources, or four decks?) and of course whether you can stomach paying "again" for Traktor Pro 2.. It is appreciably heavier, and much smaller While not as cramped as the DN-MC6000, it is not for clumsy fingers. Bodyguard.movie Free Ringtone Download.salman Khan

Coming from Native Instruments, it is the best integrated with Traktor Pro 2 out of the two, having its own setup page in TP2's preferences.. I've considered a few (I wanted the Pioneer ERGO-V but I've concluded it's too much of a toy).. The Kontrol S2 is bigger and being mainly plastic in construction, lighter than the Denon.. Unlike the S4, it has a booth output The Denon is the best made of the two, in professional steel with the very best quality controls.. So it's now vs I've got Traktor Pro 2 so I am only going to use Traktor Pro 2.. It can control either four decks OR two decks and the sample decks plus loop recorder of Traktor, so it packs in more functionality than the Kontrol S2, but at the expense of a complex workflow.. There's absolutely no way to plug any external backup source into it, so should your computer crash, the music will go silent..
